President's Message

Ms. Leslie Ferguson

The end of summer is a time of change. The changing of seasons, a new school year for many, and for us a new fiscal year. It is a very busy and challenging time for most of us at work and at home. With change also comes opportunity. An opportunity to start new and to look for innovative ways to "do things differently"... or perhaps improve on something existing.

We had the distinct honor of Mr. Easton, Deputy CFO, OUSD(C) speaking to us about change, audit, and data analytics at our August luncheon. He explained that changing the culture of our organizations will be key to a successful long-term audit strategy. The next steps for the DoD financial statement audit are to: improve data quality, improve analytics training, expand capabilities to be an analytics shared service capability, improve data automation, and focus on change management and user adoption.

I would like to welcome Mr. Stephen Herrera as our chapter president-elect. Mr. Herrera is currently performing the duties of the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Financial Management and Comptroller, Headquarters US Air Force. Thank you Steve and all of the ASMC Washington Chapter Executive Board members for volunteering your time and energy.

Your Executive Board strives to deliver meaningful and relevant events and information. We have established our budget for this year that will continue to support exciting events and activities. I think you will be pleased with the top-notch training and community service opportunities this fall that you won't want to miss! Details are provided in this newsletter regarding our line-up of excellent luncheon speakers, volunteering opportunity to support the DC Central Kitchen, chapter sponsored mini-courses at no cost to our members, and the 2019 Annual Holiday Social.

I would also like to bring to your attention the ASMC Value Proposition and benefits information that was distributed via a membership update message and the ASMC Engage collaboration platform. We have included details in this newsletter. There are several sections included; such as what ASMC supports, what our members need, what ASMC provides, the results derived, why we do it, and what makes us unlike other professional associations in meeting our member needs.

I encourage you to help us make the Washington Chapter a fundamental component of your professional activities! We ask that you share any thoughts and ideas with us.

Have a great Fiscal Year End!

Leslie

LOOKING FORWARD BY LOOKING BACKWARD

You never know what kind of hidden surprises you'll find when you least expect. That happened to me a few months ago when I was perusing around a used book store and found in the dollar bin a book that was published nearly 25 years ago, "Hope is Not A Method: What Business Leaders Can Learn From America's Army" by former Army Chief of Staff GEN(R) Gordon Sullivan and Michael Harper.

Published in 1996, I thought it would be an interesting read to see what the former Chief of Staff had to say about the Army at that time with the hindsight I experienced, having been commissioned in 1997. The Army of the mid 1990s just came out of the decades long Cold War, and was still high on the success experienced in Operation Desert Storm. The world around the United States had changed, and, consequently, the Army needed to change with it. According to GEN(R) Sullivan, "what was needed was a transformation...our task was to transform a successful organization, to take the best Army in the world and make it the best army in a different world."

The challenges faced by the Army of the mid 1990s are not really that much different to those the Army is facing today. The decade plus engagements in Iraq and Afghanistan are winding down, and we're now facing new threats in Europe and the Pacific. We are transitioning from a counter-terrorism focus to a renewed emphasis on great power competition. Once again, our task is to take the best Army in the world and make it the best army in a different world. We are seeing that now with the Army's focus on modernization and developing new ways to fight and win our Nation's wars. For example, the Abrams tank, the Bradley Fighting Vehicle, and the Black Hawk helicopter are all platforms fielded in the 1980s. It's argued each has reached the end of its upgradable shelf life, and as the Army transitions to a new way to fight through multi-domain operations, it's now time to make the technological leap to the next generation that will replace those aging platforms.

Continued:

What can we learn from the Army's transformation in the mid 1990s that we can apply to the modernization toward multi-domain operations the Army is facing today? While "Hope is Not A Method" isn't meant to provide a narrative and context to the transformation the Army was undergoing at that time, rather its target audience is leaders of any organization undergoing significant change. Despite that, there are lessons that can be learned that we can apply to not only to the Army's modernization emphasis, but to any organizational leader undergoing change. Herein is where the authors provide 11 rules for guiding change (w/excerpts):

- ❖ Rule One: Change is Hard Work – "...transformational leadership requires a personal and very hands-on approach, taking and directing action, building the confidence necessary for people to let go of today's paradigm and move into the future."
- ❖ Rule Two: Leadership Begins with Values – "...by emphasizing values, the leader signals what will not change, providing an anchor for people drifting in a sea of uncertainty and a strategic context for decisions and actions that will grow the organization."
- ❖ Rule Three: Intellectual Leads Physical – "...without the tough up-front work of intellectual change, physical change will be unfocused, random, and unlikely to succeed."
- ❖ Rule Four: Real Change Takes Real Change – "...critical processes provide the link between thinking about change and actually effecting change, because by changing the critical processes – not simply making adjustments at the margin – the leader creates a pattern, a structure, for doing things differently at the most basic level."
- ❖ Rule Five: Leadership Is a Team Sport – "...effective leadership is not about controlling from the top; it is about unleashing the power of the people."
- ❖ Rule Six: Expect to Be Surprised – "...a leader must build flexibility and resilience into the organization, conditioning it not to be surprised to be surprised so that, when the unexpected occurs, response is prompt, action is deliberate, and the organization stays on course."
- ❖ Rule Seven: Today Competes with Tomorrow – "...the leader knows that some of the resources – time, energy, the best people – must be directed toward the future and what he or she must find a balance between today and tomorrow."
- ❖ Rule Eight: Better is Better – "...better is about establishing and sustaining an edge in tomorrow's world [not today's]; better is becoming something different."
- ❖ Rule Nine: Focus on the Future – "...by sponsoring specific activities and events designed to illustrate and test the new paradigm, a leader encourages similar behavior in others, causing them to look beyond today and participate in creating the new organization."
- ❖ Rule Ten: Learn from Doing – "...by stretching the organization to act differently, to do new things in a learning atmosphere, the leader fosters an entrepreneurial spirit of innovation and growth."
- ❖ Rule Eleven: Grow People – "the challenge is not to be the most creative boss or to have the most creative headquarters staff; it is to have the most creative organization, limited only by the collective imagination of all its constituents."

Continued:

Using hindsight, how well can we evaluate the Army's transformation of the 1990s? The events of 9/11 and the subsequent counter-terrorism operations the Army found itself in within the next decade were unforeseen at the time "Hope is Not a Method" was published. Nonetheless, the underlying intent of transformation and changing the Army was to be ready for anything. As GEN(R) Sullivan states, "the challenge for the Army was not to make better guesses about the future – which is impossible – but to build more flexibility and versatility into our planning and into the force so that when the time came we could tailor a response and get it about right."

Many books have been written about the Iraq and Afghanistan operations – things that went well and things that didn't go so well. Despite the multitude of criticisms of those operations, the Army was ready to respond when the nation called. An emphasis on readiness and power projection remained constant throughout the 1990s. The Army had already started the transition from the Industrial Age to the Information Age (and continues to do so) with the initial developmental testing of the Force XXI Battle Command system, which was used extensively throughout combat operations in the 2000s. Also, used extensively in combat operations throughout the 2000s was the Stryker armored fighting vehicle, another product of the transformation of the 1990s.

When all is said and done, I think the transformational changes implemented by GEN(R) Sullivan served the Army quite well. We could not afford to continue our focus on tank battles in Europe as we had done during the Cold War, but had to be ready for anything. And we were. All and all, "Hope is Not A Method" is a good read that takes the reader back in time to help understand challenges from the past while also being able to better prepare for challenges in the future.

Community Service Event

ASMC Community Service Event!

Tuesday, September 17, 2019

9:00 AM – 12:00 PM

425 2nd St NW, Washington, DC 20001

If you didn't have the opportunity to volunteer for the DC Central Kitchen community service event held this past June, you are in luck! We are volunteering to support the DC Central Kitchen again! Please volunteer and help us fight hunger in DC!

We invite you to join your fellow ASMC Washington Chapter members as we fight hunger and transform wasted food into balanced meals for our community! You will work alongside graduates of DC Central Kitchen's Culinary Job Training program to help them prepare nutritious meals by cutting, chopping and/or peeling otherwise wasted food. With the help of volunteers like you, DC Central Kitchen prepares and deliver more than 5,000 meals to partner homeless shelters, rehabilitation clinics, halfway houses, and afterschool programs each day. No cooking or food service experience is required!

We are looking for 12 volunteers to join us in giving back to our community and help those in need!

To sign up, please send an email with your name, email address, and phone number to Chris Pritchett (cpritchett@kpmg.com) and Jeff Norris (jnorris@kpmg.com), both fellow ASMC Washington Chapter members.

ASMC Value Proposition

ASMC supports	A global community of defense financial managers, military comptrollers, and corporate members
Who need	Convenient, affordable, and collaborative opportunities for leadership and education that further enable the support of warfighters, the National Military Strategy, and the overall federal financial management (FM) profession, while enhancing their career development
By providing	Educational materials, training courses, the Certified Defense Financial Manager (CDFM) certification; leadership opportunities at National and Chapter levels, opportunities to enhance communication skills and contribute to the federal FM body of knowledge; and in-person and virtual access to a global network of peers, and a knowledgeable and customer service-oriented staff
As a result	Financial managers who are members or certificants of ASMC are equipped with the latest innovations, industry knowledge, and best practices; possess a broader understanding of defense FM policies and operations; and differentiate themselves as highly qualified candidates for positions within the DoD, the United States Coast Guard, other federal agencies, and the private sector
Because of	ASMC's status as a premier defense financial management education provider, it is recognized as a prestigious organization for leaders and other individuals serving in or supporting the defense FM community
Unlike	Competitive membership organizations or educational programs that provide products and services to the financial management profession but do not offer ASMC's unique specialization in military comptrollership

While most candidates in the CDFM program are civilian or military/reserve members of the Department of Defense, U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Army, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Navy, U.S. Marine Corps or employees of defense contractors or suppliers, the CDFM program is open to all candidates who have a high school diploma (or equivalent) and meet the following work experience qualifications:

Have the required number of years of defense-related financial management experience outlined below:

- Two (2) years if you hold an Associate's degree or higher; or
- Three (3) years if you do not have a degree.

OR

Do not have defense-related financial management experience, but can meet the following criteria outlined below:

- Four (4) years of Federal government-related financial management experience; and
- An Associate's degree or higher.

There are three steps involved with earning your CDFM:

1. Enroll in the CDFM Program. Your enrollment is valid for two (2) years, during which time you must take, and successfully pass, the three CDFM module examinations.

2. Submit Your Verification of Financial Management Experience Form. This form, which must be signed by a supervisor who can verify your work experience, must be returned to ASMC after enrolling in the CDFM program. You do not have to submit this form prior to taking a CDFM examination, but it is required prior to the awarding of the CDFM designation.

3. Purchase and Schedule the CDFM Examinations. Be sure to carefully – and completely – read the criteria associated with each testing option for the CDFM examinations. Failure to do so can result in the purchase of the wrong CDFM examination and/or the inability to test at your preferred location
