- Should the banner no longer be required, the organization is to notify GDRD of the cancellation at the earliest possible opportunity.
- Any banner not complying with the above conditions may be removed by GDRD with all associated costs being the responsibility of the organization.

Guidelines for Banner Designs

Visibility: Viewing distance is a primary factor. Your sign's lettering must be distinguishable from its surroundings. You only have about 3 seconds to catch the eye of the drive-by motorist, and about 11 seconds for walk-by traffic to notice your sign. You need to make the most of your signage. Your sign needs to get the message out quickly and attractively.

Readability/Legibility: The viewer's ability to correctly read the message is improved by individual letter distinction. The characteristic of the letters which make them distinguishable from other letters—depend upon choosing the right typestyles and spacing. This will help make the information easy to remember.

Optical Illusion: When you don't have room for lettering as large as you'd like, try using light-colored letters on a dark background. The contrast will make the lettering appear larger and viewers will find it easier to read.

PLEASE Note:

Community Partners: for new banners please include the phrase "This is a GDRD Community Partner Event"

--For Non-Profit organizations not in the Community Partners program, the phrase "This is not a Community Partner Event" should be included on your banner.

Check List

- Use of your sign: Are you directing, informing, or selling?
- Image you want to project: Professional? Sophisticated? Youthful? Fun? How should it coordinate with your other graphics and advertising? Your sign is your handshake with the buying public. First impressions are lasting impressions. Your sign must project the image you want the public to have of you.
- Your target customers: Whose attention do you want to attract?
- Viewing distance and time: How far will readers be from the sign? How long will they have to read it? Remember, people of all ages are looking through a windshield, in traffic, day and night. They must be able to see and read your sign easily.
- Sign copy and layout: What message do you want to communicate in your copy? Do you have special logo or layout requirements? Save the details for the event. Don't attempt to sell them with information on the sign.
- The design and color of the banner should not be similar to any road related signs, traffic signs and traffic lights to avoid confusion to motorists.
- Consider colors carefully. Too many colors take away from the quick readability. Make sure colors are contrasting.
- Banner should not contain too much text, this will result in the banner being cluttered and ineffective in communicating key information. Keep it simple. A good design of your sign is critical to its effectiveness. Fewer words are better—three to five words are optimal for quick readability. The proper amount of "white space" (the surface area on the sign face left uncovered) is just as important for readability as graphics, text and colors. Approximately 30% to 40% of the sign's face area should be left as white space for optimal readability. Pictures are usually ineffective. Logos can be effective if recognizable.
- Banner should contain the following information: Event Name, Date and Location
- Grab attention. There should be something about the sign that will reach out and command attention.
- Banners shall be of lightweight banner material (such as vinyl) on a single side.
